Everyone has a Story...

The Group will set you Free

I hear "Be as aggressive with your recovery as you were with your addiction" and I am, maybe too aggressive, maybe not. I've sat around many tables in the last seven months. One table every day sometimes two, I don't like to say I am seven months "clean", for one it makes it sound like if you're not clean your dirty maybe I was. But what I like to say is "I'm seven months Free". My recovery is my freedom, freedom from Incarceration and Prison, freedom from my addiction (which was a prison), freedom from being found guilty and from having and feeling guilt, freedom so that I have a choice and freedom to choose, I even want freedom from my recovery, freedom from the tables, freedom from the programs, and the freedom to manage my sobriety myself with the tools I have acquired from the connections I have made around the tables. Let me clarify...I'm not at that point yet...But I want it! I will defend it, I will fight for it and I will believe in it just as any American would for their freedom, My name is Jason and I'm an addict, I'm seven months Free and I am fighting every day for my Freedom, What will you do for yours?

What's your Recovery Story?

Anonymous or Not, Let us share it for inspiration

The Civic Center Presents Steel Magnolias

Bless your heart, what could be more important than family, friends and good hair? Welcome to Truvy's Beauty Salon in Chinquapin, Louisiana; where all the ladies who are "anybody" come to have their hair done. It's here that they bicker, share beauty tips and recipes, and swap more than an occasional bit of scandalous gossip. They also forge a bond of friendship that carries them through personal triumphs and tragedies. Just like magnolias, these southern women are delicate, beautiful and ultimately, resilient. All performances in the Civic Auditorium feature reserved seating. Doors open 30 minutes prior to each performance. Sunday February 28th @ 2pm

The cost is $20 per person and needs to be paid in full by February 20th, Seats are limited so Reserve yours today.
